Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 13 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Some rain in south overnight, cloudy elsewhere. Brightening through Friday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Remaining showers soon fading, leaving most places dry with clear spells, although southern districts may be cloudier with some rain at times. However, low cloud and mist will spread across most parts from coastal districts later in the night. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Friday:
Rather cloudy and damp at first, but brightening up with some warm sunny intervals for many later. Fewer, lighter showers then preceding days, with most areas dry into the afternoon. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rather cool through this period, with patchy rain Saturday giving way to more showery conditions from Sunday, perhaps heavy and prolonged locally. Slight rural frosts.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.